JICA Development Studies Program (JICA-DSP)

Various universities, in collaboration with JICA, have established JICA-DSP among the graduate school degree courses they offer. JICA-DSP consists of class subjects pertaining to the development experience of modern Japan (including the experience of Japan's own development and of its cooperation with other countries through ODA). This program offers JICA scholars a chance to deepen their understanding of Japan's development experience in the respective academic fields.

School of International and Public Policy

Hitotsubashi University has established a professional graduate school, School of International and Public Policy, in collaboration with the Graduate School of Law and Economics, and aims to foster leaders who are able to identify relevant public policy problems and find their solutions.

In achieving this goal, this course will be guided by the following four basic principles: 1. Professional education based on the foundation of state-of-the-art research, 2. Foster leadership with multiple viewpoints through cross-cutting analysis, 3. Emphasis on multi-faceted and practical policy analysis, 4. Foster leaders who will play an active role in the world and build a research centre in the Asia-Pacific region.

PROGRAM OUTLINE

This program is an immersive, experiential program, in which students experience the process of industrialization and modernization of a country through simulation. Understanding the problems caused by modernization, and analyzing the successes and failures of the political responses to these problems, enables international students from developing countries, particularly, to visualize the modernization process of their countries. They are then able to contribute significantly to the strategic and policy making processes.

COURSE SUBJECTS

Japan's Foreign Policy Making I

- Reading, seminars and discussions, and lectures by scholars and policymakers specialized in various areas of Japanese foreign policy and global governance

Japan's Fiscal and Monetary Policy Making

- Review of reasons for the success and failure of Japan's domestic fiscal and monetary policies to understand the transformation of the Japanese economy

I am sincerely honored to have been selected as the recipient of the JICA scholarship for the SDGs Global Leader Program. This program provides a good avenue for a healthy exchange of ideas and experiences on socio-economics issues and policy implications. It also offers a deeper insight into the Japanese economy and policy making process. The knowledge and experience I have obtained from this program have supported my growth in policy making. I am excited and keen to be contributing to the socio-economic development of Myanmar and creating a growth-fostering relationship between Japan and Myanmar.
